KILLED BY TREE

Sparksville Man Meets Almost Instant Death.

Thomas Hamilton, age 60, a farmer and timber man residing on the farm of Howard Smith, a few miles northeast of Medora, met almost instant death Friday while cutting timber in John C. Gullett's woods in Washington county, one mile west of the Cavanaugh Ferry. His two sons were felling a tree and he was some distance away filing a saw. The tree fell in the opposite direction from what was intended. When it started to fall the boys called to their father to look out and he jumped in the way of the falling tree. His head was crushed by a falling limb. Besides the sons three log haulers were near. Four of the men did what they could to make the unfortunate man comfortable while Erasmus Lockman ran a mile to the residence of John Sutton at the Cavanaugh Ferry where he telephoned for Dr. Ray, of Medora. The accident occurred about 10:30 and the doctor arrived an hour later. He found the man's head horribly mangled. There was a ghastly wound low on the back part of the head and a fracture running forward over the top of the head to the temple. He was carried to a residence nearby where the end came about 12:35 without his ever regaining consciousness. Mr. Hamilton came near being killed by a tree not long ago and when someone remarked about his narrow escape he replied that it missed him two feet. Only a half hour before the accident of Friday John Gullett had told him that he would get killed yet and he admitted that he was getting careless. He was an expert timber man and had been employed by Howard Smith cutting timber for several years. He can usually tell where a tree will fall but because of a high wind he missed his judgment. If he had not moved when the tree started to fall he would have been safe by ten feet. Mr. Smith has been employing large numbers of men in the timber for several years and this is the first fatal accident that has ever occurred with any of his men.

The deceased leaves a widow and a large family of children. He was a well respected citizen and has been a resident of that part of the county for many years.

The remains were removed to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jesse Gray, at Medora, late in the afternoon where the funeral will occur Sunday morning at ten o'clock. The remains will be taken to the Proctor cemetery, near Ft. Ritner for interment.

Will Leave Hospital.

Lee Wood, of Indianapolis, who lost a leg by falling under a Pennsylvania train four weeks ago, has made rapid progress and will be able to go to the home of his brother at Indianapolis tomorrow. His splendid physical condition has helped to make his improvement more rapid. But for the fact that the foot on the other leg was seriously injured he could have left the hospital several days ago.

Foot Ball Game.

The Seymour High school is playing the Brownstown High school team at the grounds on west Second street this afternoon. At 3:30 the first half of 20 minutes was finished and the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of Seymour.

George F. Herkamp, of near Free-town, is arranging to sell his property some time in November and move to Jasonville for future residence. He expects to fire at the mines and his three sons Frank, George and Ed will probably go along with him and work about the mines. Mr. Herkamp formerly resided at Pleasant Grove and was one of the well known farmers of that community. Two of his sons are working in Seymour at present.

NEW GARAGE

Building to Be Completed for Automobile Business.

Rudolph Buhner and James W. Cunningham have just closed a deal whereby they become the owners of the large uncompleted building on South Chestnut, which was begun by Charles Nicholson some time ago, and which he intended to use for a skating rink. The walls of the building are made of concrete blocks, but the building was never completed and has stood in its unfinished condition for over two years. Mr. Buhner is now engaged in the automobile business on High street, which he runs in connection with his machine shop.

The work of completing the building will be begun at once, and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by the first of next year. The modern garage requires considerable floor space and the new building when completed will afford ample room for a large business.

The new firm will be agent for several standard machines and will keep a complete line of automobile accessories in stock. It is the intention of those connected with this enterprise to establish in this city one of the most complete garages in the state, and be able to supply their customers with any accessories needed. This, with the other garage and places where automobile supplies can be had, will afford the automobile owners of this city advantages which other cities of this size do not have.

SCCIABILITY RUN

Automobiles Pass Through Seymour On Way to French Lick.

Many automobile enthusiasts took advantage of the ideal weather today and joined the Sociability run from Indianapolis to French Lick. About twenty big machines left Indianapolis this morning, and although there was no effort to establish a new speed record good time was made by all the machines. While there were no specified conditions as to when the machine could be supplied with gasoline and oil, most of them stopped at the gasoline station of W. A. Carter and Son, and refilled their machines.

The first machine which was the pathfinder or confetti car, left Indianapolis at 7 o'clock, or at the same time the Dixie Flyer left the terminal station, and arrived in Seymour about three minutes after the interurban car left this city. That car had seven occupants among whom was James A. Stuart, Sunday Editor of the Indianapolis Star, and scattered confetti along the route to be followed. According to the rules of the run, the automobiles were to leave Indianapolis five minutes apart, after the first car started, and most of them reached this city about 10 o'clock. Those making the run expected to reach French Lick in time for dinner.

This afternoon the hill climbing contest will take place and the winner will be given a very handsome cup, which was offered by Thomas Taggart, proprietor of the French Lick Springs Hotel. The Indianapolis News was represented by S. M. Brundage and rode with Arthur A. Newby, who manufactures the National. Carl Fisher, a prominent automobilist and James Allison of the Pres-o-Lite Company, also entered machines in the run. The autos will return to Indianapolis tomorrow, leaving French Lick some time in the afternoon.

Visiting Aged Father.

William L. Bultman arrived here early this morning from his home at Houston, Texas County, Missouri, en route to the Pleasant Grove neighborhood to visit his aged father, J. H. Bultman, who has passed his ninety-first year but is reported to be in very good health for a man of his age. The son resides in the Ozark Mountains and at present is engaged in the real estate business. He has been a resident of Missouri for about seven years and reports the real estate business good and land increasing rapidly in value there as it is everywhere else. He expects to remain here about a month.

Under Control.

The cases of diphtheria in this city are being watched with utmost vigilance and are under control. There are no new cases reported and those who are affected are improving. The health officer and the school authorities used every effort to prevent a spread of the disease in the schools, and by their care and diligence an epidemic was averted. The school buildings were thoroughly disinfected and due caution was taken whenever a symptom appeared. Most of the parents who thought it advisable to keep their children home have returned them to school and by Monday it is thought, all the absent pupils will be in their regular places.

TRACTION TALK

Surveyors at Work Between Scottsburg and Madison.

The surveyors started in at Scottsburg this week to survey the route for the proposed Cincinnati, Madison and Western interurban road. Thursday night they had reached a point about 4 1/2 miles east of Scottsburg. The people of Scottsburg are well pleased with the outlook and expect the road to be built. The distance from Scottsburg to Madison by the new road will be about 26 or 27 miles. This still leaves a long stretch of track to build from Madison up the river through Jefferson, Switzerland, Ohio and Dearborn counties to Aurora before Louisville and Cincinnati are connected by interurban. But many along the proposed route feel confident that the road will be built. The traffic between the two larger cities is the only thing that will make the line profitable to build as the cost of construction through this rough hilly country will be far too great for the income from the towns and smaller cities on the line to pay a reasonable profit on the investment. When this road is completed it will increase the business of the Indianapolis and Louisville traction line between Scottsburg and Sellersburg by tens of thousands of dollars every year.

But a line built from Aurora to Seymour would be of still greater benefit to the I. & L. as it would give them eighteen miles farther to haul the through passengers traveling between Louisville and Cincinnati. This would not mean that the distance between the two larger cities would be eighteen miles farther for a road from Aurora to Seymour would be almost ten miles shorter than a road from Aurora to Scottsburg. This would save the building of about eight or nine hills of track and would put the road where it would be much easier to build and operate. It is all together probable that Cincinnati and St. Louis will be connected by an electric line before many years and when this road is built it will be direct and of course will pass through Seymour. A road for Rising Sun, Vevay and Madison may be profitable later but meanwhile capitalists who furnish the money to build steam and electric railways particularly the latter, are working to connect the larger centers of population first and by building as few miles of track as possible.

Army Recruits.

Sergeant Walter Ringwalt and Corporal Lewis Cole, who opened a recruiting office here recently at No. 4 S. Chestnut street, the room vacated by Sclarra, the tailor, report fine recruits to date and four applicants rejected. Walter McGuire, of Comiskey, passed the necessary examinations successfully and was sent away on Monday, Oct. 4th. Edward D. Vance, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and John M. Hash, of Seymour, were sent out on Monday, Oct. 11th. Willis S. Bryant, of Bedford, an ex-soldier who re-enlisted, left here Wednesday and William H. Spalding, of Oolitic, who enlisted Wednesday, leaves here Saturday. The requirements are less strict in some regards than formerly and the result is that many young men who have the qualifications for making good soldiers and who have been rejected heretofore for slight defects of the eyes and other organs are now being accepted. One or two of the four men rejected here were almost able to pass and may do so later.

New Rock Road.

George I. Davis and Lou Godfrey, of Reddington, are pushing the work on the new stone pike extending from the Consolidated school building east to the county line, a distance of two miles. The work will be almost completed in another week if they can get a sufficient number of teams all the time. There were sixteen teams hauling crushed stone from the B. & O. S-W. sidetrack here this morning and a few days ago thirty-two teams were at work at once. This road was opened up to the county line about the first of last April and extends through a long stretch of the low wet bottoms which have never been cleared up only here and there. To make the road useful it was necessary to spend quite a good deal of money on it. When completed it will be one of the best pike roads in Jackson county. The road extending west from the Consolidated school building was piked two years ago.

"I spent lots of money with doctors and the use of local applications to relieve me, but to no purpose until my attention was called to the wonderful effects of Peruna.

"I must say that I met with most surprising and satisfactory results. Peruna took hold of the complaint and drove it entirely out of my system.

SEYMOUR DAILY REPUBLICAN

SMITH & REMY, Publishers.

SEYMOUR, INDIANA.

We refuse to get gentle and sympathetic toward fleas just because they are blind.

Secretary Wilson says there will be a superfluity of work for everybody on the farms. There always was.

The man who "absolved his wife from all blame" should have done so before she killed herself and her children.

It seems to be an off season when no effort is being made to show that somebody has been the victim of foul play at the Annapolis naval academy.

A girl who landed at New York the other day with fourteen trunks declared that she was penniless. If she filled them while abroad, it's no wonder.

Pessimists are already looking forward to the time when the aviators will be planning to strike unless they can have more money per hour for aviating.

Some of the plain people of England seem to have broken away from the old idea that they ought to be nice to anybody who happens to be a friend of Edward's.

It is not so much the size and design of the new paper money which interests the people as whether or not it will buy more of this world's goods than the old did.

A California scientist tells us that a flea has eyes out that it cannot see. That may be true, but it has a diamond drill worked by forty horse power chain lightning.

The newest thing in ladies' hats is called the toque Russ. It is guaranteed to cost just as much and to be just as ugly as anything in the hat line that has preceded it.

Kansas has a town where the only expletive men are permitted to use in public is "By chowder!" We suppose the ladies are permitted when things go wrong to murmur: "Oh, pickles!"

Names may cause fame. An example is found in the case of a small Welsh town, which was shaken recently by a tiny earthquake, and forthwith got its name in the papers: Llydfyllanlraethll.

A European gentleman is suing a Boston girl who didn't marry him. He asks for the money he says she promised as a "marriage settlement." An American jury ought to be able to handle this breezy demand for the cash.

A Massachusetts landlady has been arrested on a charge of having killed one of her boarders. Let us hope she did not talk him to death by telling him about the better days she had seen or the excellent standing of her fine old family.

One of the justices has fined a woman for calmly eating her breakfast while her husband was being "thrashed" in the diningroom by the star boarder. It is only reasonable to insist that she should have at least shown enough emotion to have spilled her coffee.

The average expense for repairs to the machinery of each of the American warships that made the cruise round the world was about $3,000, and the total cost of the cruise was less than a million and a half. Of course more money was spent, but it cost only this much more than if the ships had stayed at home. The cruise was worth it.

The gentleman who told his landlady that it is "cheaper to move than to pay rent" has never held a high place in the esteem of financiers; yet recently the acute management of Krupp, the German gun works, decided that it would pay better to remove a whole village than to buy it piecemeal. Schlagbruecker is the hamlet that stands dangerously near the works. It catches so many projectiles when the great guns are tested that claims for damages are continuously arising, and it has finally been voted to save money by purchasing the village outright and razing it to the ground.

Truth is stranger than even dime-novel fiction. A United States Secret Service operative recently broke up a band of Italian counterfeiters after trailing them for four years. An American by birth, he learned Italian, got into New York as a steamer passenger, disguised as an immigrant, worked as a ditch-digger, won the confidence of the counterfeiters by posing as a fellow criminal, and ate and slept with scoundrels who would have killed him instantly if they had suspected him. Finally, his chain of evidence complete, he got the gang together and arrested them, to the last man. The hero of fiction gets more "glory," but this real life hero seems to have been content to do his duty.

The Cubans seem to be still a long way from mastering the art and craft of self-government. Congress has just adjourned without passing the budget, and as money is as essential in Cuba as elsewhere President Gomez, by an executive decree, has retained the budget for the year just closed. The bone of contention in the budget was the provision for the payment of the expenses of the second American occupation, and this seems to throw a light upon the national appreciation of benefits received. The occupation was made necessary by Cuban incompetence, and it is hard to see why the United States should be called upon to shoulder the cost as well as the labor and the responsibility. But if the Cuban Congress left the budget unsettled there were some other matters, and probably much more important ones in Cuban eyes, that were arranged with energy and dispatch. One of these was a law creating a national lottery and another was a legalization of the dignified amusement of cock-fighting. With such matters of pressing import to engage the attention of this self-governing people, who have just emerged from the darkness of tyranny into the light of moral and political progress, it is small wonder that the wearied energies of the national representatives should be unable to come to concentrated agreement upon a detail like the budget and the payment of a debt. With every desire to be a little blind to Cuban faults and a little kind to Cuban virtues, it is hard to resist a feeling of discouragement at these renewed proofs of incapacity, says the San Francisco Argonaut. If the republic refuses to pay her debts there will probably be no effort to compel her to do so. If her legislators can find nothing better to do than to legalize vice and cruelty, we can only pity their taste and leave them to themselves—for the present, but with the uneasy conviction that national impotence must sooner or later take intolerable forms and that the present experimental era of self-government is, as Colonel Watterson says, the last call for dinner in the dining-car.

A bulletin lately issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor contains much interesting and some striking information concerning the growth and resources of the United States. It is now virtually three hundred years since the first permanent settlements were made on this continent. Since then that portion of the continent which forms the United States has come to be occupied by upward of eighty million people. It is doubtful if ever before in the history of the world so large an area was so quickly occupied by so numerous a population. As compared with the region settled since the Revolution, the thirteen original States contain but a small area. It is, nevertheless, a fact that one-third of the total population of the country is still living in that circumscribed area, and another third in the region which the thirteen original States ceded to the national government. The remaining third lives in States most of which lie beyond the Mississippi. The rapid development of the country, and especially the rapid spread of population, was due of course to the large amount of accessible land. It is not yet all exhausted. Counting Alaska, more than three-quarters of a billion acres still remain undistributed. Of course much of this is at present undesirable; but irrigation, the reclaiming of swamps and the extension of roads and railways, will yet turn millions of acres to service. The original population and its descendants have been modified by an admixture of twenty-six million immigrants, and the foreign tide now flowing in approximates a million a year. In spite of that, however, the native-born element is holding its own. Not since 1860—a period of almost fifty years, and the period too, of the country's greatest development—has there been any appreciable change in the ratio of the foreign element to the native-born. It was about 13 per cent then. It is the same now.

He Could Sympathize.
A large touring-car, containing a man and his wife, met a hay wagon fully loaded in a narrow road, says a writer in Harper's Magazine. The woman declared that the farmer must back out, but her husband contended that she was unreasonable.

"But you can't back the automobile so far," she said, "and I don't intend to move for anybody. He should have seen us."

The husband pointed out that this was impossible, owing to an abrupt turn in the road.

"I don't care," she insisted. "I won't move if we have to stay here all night."

The man in the automobile was starting to argue the matter, when the farmer, who had been sitting quietly on the hay, interrupted.

"Never mind, old man," he exclaimed, "I'll try to back out! I've got one just like her at home."

Portable Family Tree.
The mayor of Honolulu carries a goodly part of his family tree around with him. He is using two eye teeth that belonged in her lifetime to his grandmother, wears a heart watch charm made of the kneecap of his great-great-grandmother and the polished white buttons on his coat are from the bones of others of his ancestors.

Fascination of the Bazar.
Women like goods massed together, and they like to be tempted to buy. It is a form of dissipation in which almost all love to indulge, incomprehensible though it may be to men. That is why the bazar never loses its popularity.—Lady's Pictorial London.

French Proverb.

FEMININE FANCIES
THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Give the Girl a Square Deal.

The very best post-graduate course that any girl could be given, says a writer in the Philadelphia Bulletin, would be a year in her father's office, and if every girl could have that education we should not have to shed so many tears over the misfortune of middle-aged women who have been robbed of their all by men who beguile them into investing in schemes that should not have taken in a baby.

The son of a family is safeguarded against want by being taught some sort of a trade by which he can support himself. The majority of girls are not. We take a long shot at their marrying. Sometimes they do and sometimes they don't, but even if they do marry it is no guaranty against want. Not every man who marries is capable of supporting a wife, and even if he is, men fall sick, or die, and often a woman is suddenly confronted with the necessity of not only earning bread and butter for herself, but for the invalid husband and a houseful of children, when she has been taught no way on earth of making a penny.

Even if a girl does marry, her mother seldom takes the trouble to prepare her for it. Yet every woman knows that happiness and success in matrimony depend mainly upon the wife knowing her business, being a good manager, a good housekeeper, a good salt, a dash of ammonia or a piece of charcoal. One inveterate lover of flowers, however, says that if you are going to put anything into the water in which they are kept the most effective thing is a lump of sugar.

Two Fall Hats.

Lifts Love Censorship.

Stepmothers—indeed, any mother at all—must not interfere with the love-making of their sons and daughters, according to Mayor Cooper, of Reading, a suburb of Cincinnati, who fined a mother because she had visited the home of her son's sweetheart at 10 o'clock one night and had brought the boy home by the ear. Incidentally, the Mayor read a lecture to all mothers, in which he held that they had no right to pry into the love affairs with emery paper and a polishing with chamolis.

When running brass rods through window curtains put an old glove finger over the end that is being pushed through the hem. Unless this is done the material is apt to tear.

Gas burners, like other things, are likely to get dirty. Often there is quite a little collection of rubbish on them and if this is cleared away the improvement in the light is noticeable.

If your furniture has grown dull and streaked try rubbing up with a flannel dipped in equal parts of turpentine and coal oil. It polishes quickly and much more cheaply than expensive polishes.

If furniture looks smeary after polishing you may be pretty certain that too much polish was used. Very little, indeed, is really needed; only just enough to smear quite thinly over the surface.

Teach Dying Children.

On the basis of recent investigations the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declare, in a statement just issued, that the United States is paying annually $7,500,000 for the education of more than 1,000,000 children who will die from tuberculosis before they reach the age of 18. To offset this waste

TWO NEW AND ATTRACTIVE STYLES.

A Variation of the Apron Tunic.

Many of the new overskirts are exactly like little aprons with bib at the top and the sides drawn around, pinafore fashion, to the back. An apron frock is illustrated here, the material being a permo fabric in champagne color. The mohair and worsted weave with a silky permo finish is light, soft and entirely suitable for graceful, draped effects of this kind, and the apron tunic with its bib and shoulder straps, is delightfully girlish and graceful in type. The hat is a nut brown velvet model with creamy yellow ostrich tips.

The New Surplice Front Coat.

A winter garment with but one fastening, and that well below the waist, seems a rather preposterous notion, but many of the smartest tailored models for fall are made in this way. The right front of the coat crosses the left in a surplice effect, the fastening being arranged at the hip. These loose coats, held together only at the hip, require a master hand in the cutting in order to hold their position correctly on the figure seated or standing. This princess model with the surplice front and single fastening shows the new style in a very pleasing manner.

The WORK THAT'S NEVER DONE

A crust of bread helps to clean out a sticky bread pan.

Salt added to starch is responsible for the gloss on linen when it is ironed.

Apply the white of an egg with a camel's-hair brush to fly specks on gilt frames and they will disappear.

To clean pewter, wash it well with hot water, rub it with fine sand and, when dry, polish it with leather.

It's a good idea to save all soap wrappers. Smooth hot flatirons by rubbing them over the soapy paper.

Unbleached calico shrinks in the wash. Allow an extra inch to each yard in making it up, to allow for this.

After washing the lamp chimney polish it with dry salt. It makes the glass bright and will prevent its breaking.

If you accidentally spill ice cream on a silk waist try using alcohol to remove the grease bluish. It also removes a candy or gum bluish.

Ivory knife handles that have become yellowed by constant washing may usually be whitened by a rubbing of their sons and daughters. He declared he would punish severely any one brought before him on such a charge.

Teaches Women Farming.

Mrs. Victoria Woodhull Martin, the American widow of an English banker, has a large English estate, which she has divided into plots and is trying to induce the village women to enter into agriculture. A clubhouse for the women and Gredon Norton College, where they may study the subject, are also established by her to improve the condition of the village women.

The Correct Proportions.

The following are the correct measurements of a woman weighing 130 pounds, uncorseted, according to the standard of the Greeks: Waist, 27 inches; bust, 34 inches; upper arm, 13 inches; thigh, 25 inches; calf, 14½ inches; ankle, 8 inches; hips, 33 inches.

Mending.

Mend clothes, especially starched ones, before sending them to the laundry, so that when they are returned clean and nicely folded there will be no need to disarrange and crumple them for mending purposes.

Enamel Ware.

Egg shells, roughly crushed in the hands, are the best things for cleaning enameled pans in conjunction with soap and water.

PINKHAM
CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Camden, N.J.—"It is with pleasure that I add my testimonial to your already long list—hoping that it may induce others to avail themselves of this valuable medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered from terrible headaches, pain in my back and right side, was tired and nervous, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to health and made me feel like a new person, and it shall always have my praise."

—Mrs. W. P. VALENTINE, 902 Lincoln Avenue, Camden, N. J.

Gardner, Me.—"I was a great sufferer from a female disease. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."

—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, Jr. F. D. No. 14, Box 30, Gardner, Me.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

Philippine Cigars.

An army officer who has seen service in the Philippines is accustomed to tell his friends that the most likeable thing he found in the islands was the tobacco. Another army officer, at home a persistent smoker, broke off the habit after he had been a short time stationed at Manila, because he could not use the tobacco. Probably the same diversified results will follow local tests of the 30,000 cigars that have reached Boston as an installment of the 150,000,000 which, under a provision of the new tariff act, are admitted to the country free of duty, the Boston Transcript says. In appearance they are not at all suggestive of the old-fashioned Manila "cheroots" but copy standard shapes and sizes and show much better workmanship than did the pioneer cigars from Porto Rico. As these specimens represent it, the tobacco of the Philippines is light colored and mild, and many persons find its flavor agreeable, though others profess to detect a "tang" of bitterness which might be accounted for by improper curing. The retail price of cigars ranges from 3 cents to 10 cents. No mature and experienced smoker ever attempts to choose tobacco to suit another smoker's taste, but with this qualification it seems safe to give it as a consensus of opinion that the novelties from the Philippines are worth their cost.

His Experience Useful.

The prodigal son, repentant, or, at any rate, weary, of the diet of husks forced upon his kind by a vigilant police system, had experienced a change of heart and joined the church. The good sisters were discussing his desirability.

"But," expostulated Mr. Straightlace, with a fine and virtuous display of righteousness, "he was a common gambler—what they call a bunko steerer."

"Isn't it lovely!" exclaimed Mrs. Up-todate. "What a help he will be in getting up our church fairs."—Philadelphia Record.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

Agrees with Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favor of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients."

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find 'Grape-Nuts and albumen water' very nourishing and refreshing."

"This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice for flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomachs can assimilate without any distress."

"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients."

"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone—well or sick."

In any case of stomach trouble, nervous prostration or brain fog—a 10-day trial of Grape-Nuts will work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding and in this way ending the trouble.

"There's a Reason," and trial proves. Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

More Than Enough is Too Much.

To maintain health, a mature man or woman needs just enough food to repair the waste and supply energy and body heat. The habitual consumption of more food than is necessary for these purposes is the prime cause of stomach troubles, rheumatism and disorders of the kidneys. If troubled with indigestion, revise your diet, let reason and not appetite control and take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be all right again. Peril in Spring Locks.

Parents should warn their children about the dangers of getting into trunks or closets which have spring locks. A little girl while playing the other day hid from her playmates in a trunk and, the lid falling, the spring lock prevented her from lifting it, and the result was she was dead when her mother finally looked for her there. No child should be allowed to hide in closets either if the doors cannot be opened from the inside.

Worn Women

Women, worn and tired from overwork, need a tonic. That feeling of weakness or helplessness will not leave you of itself. You should take Wine of Cardui, that effectual remedy for the ailments and weaknesses of women. Thousands of women have tried Cardui and write enthusiastically of the great benefit it has been to them. Try it—don't experiment—use this reliable, oft-tried medicine.

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Rena Hare, of Pierce, Fla., tried Cardui and afterward wrote: "I was a sufferer from all sorts of female trouble, had pain in my side and legs, could not sleep, had shortness of breath. I suffered for years, until my husband insisted on my trying Cardui. The first bottle gave me relief and now I am almost well. Try Cardui. 'Twill help you."

AT ALL DRUG STORES

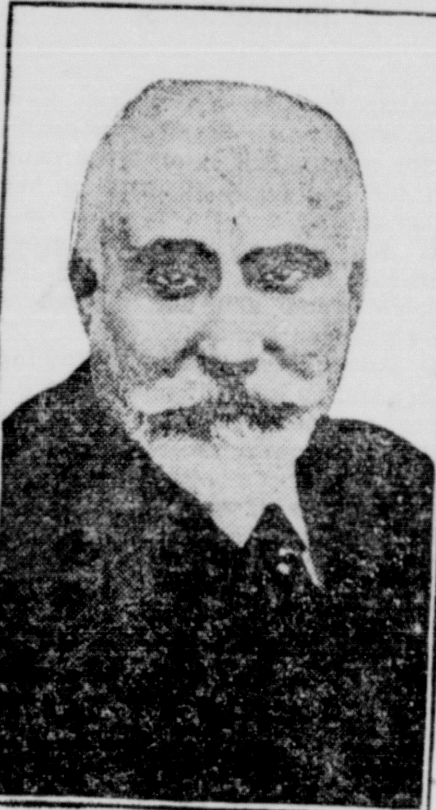

PREMIER MAURA WAS DENOUNCED

Opening of Spanish Cortes a Noisy Event.

HOSTILITIES WERE AVERTED

While the Bitter Feeling Between Parties in Spain Did Not Break Out Into Open Ruction, a Situation Was Developed Which Indicates a Rocky Road Ahead For the Government—Many Members Refuse to Join in "Long Live the King."

Madrid, Oct. 16.—Hostilities did not materialize at the opening of the cortes, though it was a noisy event, and at one time a fight between the rival deputies seemed inevitable. When Premier Maura entered the chamber to read the decree convoking the cortes, Senor Azzatti, a Republican, sprang to his feet and began a speech. The president called him to order, reminding him that the session had not yet opened. This brought the whole Republican section up and began shouting of protest against Ferrer's execution, denunciations of the government, and violent epithets directed against the prime minister and Senor Clerva, minister of the interior, filled the house. The ministerial deputies tried to shout down the disturbers, crying, "Long live the king," applauding the government and abusing the Republicans.

When the row was at its height a section of the Conservative deputies rushed toward the Republicans. A clash was only prevented by the ushers and some of the calmer Republicans throwing themselves between the rivals.

Senor Maura read the decree, and then the customary cheers for king, country and army were invited. A great majority responded heartily, but some others only shouted "Long live Spain." Amid a variety of Republican cries, the most noteworthy was "Yes, long live Spain, but Spain with honor."

BIG FIGHT TODAY

Ketchel and Johnson Enter Ring For the Prize Belt.

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—In the open-air amphitheater at Colma this afternoon Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchel will fight for the heavyweight championship of the world. They are matched to go twenty rounds at catchweights, a side bet of $10,000 and 60 per cent of the gross receipts which may amount to $30,000. Jack Welch will be the third man in the ring. Johnson is six feet 1 3/4 inches tall and says he will weigh 190 pounds when he steps to the scratch. Ketchel's height has been announced at five feet eleven inches, but he is fully an inch shorter. He will tip the beam at 176 pounds, being heavier by sixteen pounds than when he knocked out O'Brien in Philadelphia last spring. Ketchel is twenty-two years old and Johnson thirty-one.

TWO PRESIDENTS MEET ON BORDER

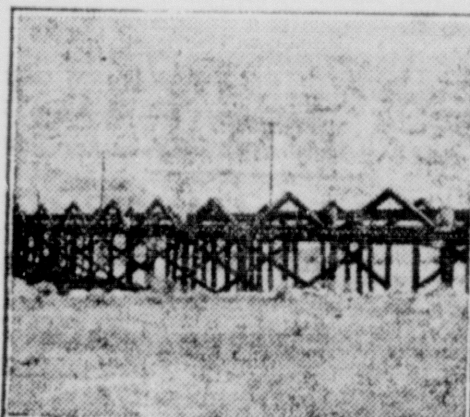

Taft and Diaz Greet Each Other Today.

THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

Never Before Had the Presidents of the Neighboring Republics Paid Their Respects to Each Other in Person, and the Occasion Today Was Made One of Much Formality—Diaz Crosses Bridge to Meet Taft, Who Later Crosses the Bridge to Meet His Neighbor.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 16.—President William H. Taft arrived in El Paso this morning, where he exchanged greetings today with President Diaz of Mexico. This meeting between the two executives has proved the most interesting event of the entire Taft trip. It is the first time that the president of the United States and the president of Mexico have paid their respects to each other in this way and marks the second occasion on which the president of the United States has stepped on foreign soil. President Roosevelt visited the Isthmus of Panama in his second administration. The arrangements of the meeting have been entirely in the hands of the state department, and it was very formal.

At 11 o'clock President Diaz, with a military escort, crossed on the Rio Grande river bridge from Juarez and paid his respects to President Taft on the American side. This meeting was private, only the secretaries and personal aides of the respective executives being present.

Early in the afternoon President Taft made his return visit. In the evening President Taft will cross the boundary line again to be President Diaz's guests at one of the most notable banquets ever given in Mexico. The china and plate to be used at the feast belonged to the service of the Emperor Maximilian and have been brought from the city of Mexico for the occasion. Other arrangements for the banquet are on an equally elaborate scale.

Saw Interesting Native Dance.

The president's train stopped within a stone's throw of the curious little town of Acoma yesterday, where the Pueblos gave a war dance. Upon the mesa the president was between 200 and 300 squat little adobes, their walls the color of the pale alkali soil about them and windowless except for here and there a hole which served to admit air as well as light. The buildings were cold and colorless enough, but on their flat projecting roofs was a display that would have made a peacock envious. All of the Pueblo women of the town, dressed in their brightest and best, had sought these vantage points to greet the distinguished visitor. As the president approached the pueblo the women faced silently from the roofs. It was a curious looking procession that was headed for the plaza where the braves of the tribe were squatting in silent expectation. In the lead was Captain Butt in his army uniform of khaki, then the president and his camp followers, dressed for roughing it, followed by the New Mexico committee, and finally the gorgeous line of squaws. As the president stepped out on the plaza's smooth floor of solid rock, Chief Paisiano of Lagunas, or governor, as they call him here, advanced with outstretched hand. He is the oldest man in the pueblo, close to one hundred years of age. "How?" said Paisiano, shaking the president's hand.

"How you do?" replied Mr. Taft. "Glad," said Paisiano, bending over to kiss the president's hand.

Mr. Taft did not realize at first what the intention of the chief was, but when the Indian's lips went within a few inches of his hand, he drew away. "No, no, tell him he needn't do that," said Mr. Taft, and the old chief backed away disappointed.

The president received a similar greeting from Poncho, chief of the Acomas, and the president was escorted to a little tent that had been put up at one end of the plaza to shade him. At the entrance to the tent was an arm chair, and from this the president watched the war dance.

Found in Pool of Blood.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 16.—Dennis B. Simison, one of Tippecanoe county's wealthiest farmers, was killed by a rifle bullet. Whether the affair was an accident or suicide probably will never be known. A servant found him lying in a pool of blood in a pantry with a 22-caliber rifle lying by his side.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 17, 1909

PAUL A PRISONER—BEFORE FELIX. Lesson: Acts 24: 10-27.

GOLDEN TEXT:—Herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men. Acts 23: 16.

In the close of the last chapter we saw how the chief captain, Claudius Lysias, sent Paul safely to Caesarea with a letter to Felix, the governor, in which he stated that there was nothing against the prisoner worthy of death or of bonds, but simply some question of Jewish law; that the Jews would have killed him if he had not rescued him from them; that he understood that they were still determined to kill him, and, being a Roman citizen, he had sent him to Caesarea, commanding his accusers to appear against him there. After five days the high priest and the elders, with a certain orator to speak for them, appeared before Felix, and Paul was brought forth to meet them. With some flattery, which evidently pleased Felix, and therefore the orator cut it short, he told a number of lies about Paul, which the high priest and the elders endorsed. Flattery and lying are still the order of the day among some religious bodies. But God is a God of truth, and in due time truth will prevail.

Being permitted to speak for himself, Paul denied all their accusations and briefly stated the whole truth of the matter, showing that it was wholly a matter of doctrine and of opinion as to what the Scriptures really taught; that he believed all that was written in the law and in the prophets and looked for a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust. This meant Jesus risen from the dead as Israel's promised Messiah, the Son of David, to sit on David's throne; also a fulfillment of Ezek. xxxvii, Jer. xlii, Isa. ix, Dan. vii and all the prophets concerning the future of the nation and the king who shall reign in righteousness. It meant the resurrection of His body, the church, at His coming to the air for His saints (I Thess. iv, 16-18; I Cor. xv, 51-54), though that would not be specially in his mind, as he thought of Israel. It meant the resurrection of the unjust and the great white throne judgment at the end of the millennial reign of Christ. It meant that God will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom He hath ordained, whereof he hath given assurance unto all men in that He hath raised Him from the dead (xvii, 31). This, with justification by faith through the finished work of Christ apart from any works of the law, was counted heresy by these zealous Jews. But Jesus Himself taught this kind of heresy when He said, "O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken" (Luke xxiv, 25).

Today there are with many no reliable writings of Moses, no prediction whatever, no future for Israel, nothing supernatural, no coming again of Christ, no wrath of God, but all such are simply unbelievers and stand against Christ, for He testified that all things written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the Psalms concerning Him must be fulfilled (Luke xxiv, 44). Felix is said to have had more perfect knowledge of "the way" (verse 22) perhaps because his wife, Drusilla, was a Jewess, so he postponed the case until Lysias, the chief captain, should come and tell what he knew. Meantime he gave Paul into the keeping of a centurion, with orders to let him have liberty and to allow all his friends to come to see him and to minister to him. This made it comparatively easy for Paul and would give him opportunity to strengthen the faith of the brethren at Caesarea, and he would certainly have much to tell of the Lord's doings since first He met him on the way to Damascus, and they would not be apt to weary of hearing of His wondrous works.

From time to time Felix sent for him and heard him concerning the faith in Christ, and on one occasion as he and his wife, Drusilla, listened to Paul reasoning of righteousness, temperance and judgment to come Felix actually trembled, but put his convictions from him, saying: "Go thy way for this time. When I have a convenient season I will call for thee." For two years this continued, Felix always hoping that Paul would offer him money to release him, and with that hope he sent for him the oftener. But Paul, having no thought of any release but a righteous one, never offered him a bribe, and so the successor of Felix came into office and found Paul still a prisoner. Felix's convenient time to repent never having come.

"Tomorrow" is not only the great word in many lands concerning temporal affairs, but it is the devil's great word for all who give any thought to their souls' welfare and for many saved ones concerning good works which they know ought to be done. The word of the Lord is, "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (II Cor. vi, 2); "Today, if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts" (Heb. iii, 15). A word in Prov. xxix, 1, also comes to mind as we think of Felix and all such. The sinner may well tremble as he thinks of his own sin and is told that the unrighteous cannot enter the kingdom of God, but there is comfort in Rom. vi, 23. Concerning temperance, or self control, the result of righteousness, see Tit. ii, 12. Of judgment we have already spoken.

Well Known Hotel Keeper Uses and Recommends Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I take great pleasure in saying that I have kept Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in my family medicine chest for about fifteen years, and have always had satisfactory results from its use. I have administered it to a great many traveling men who were suffering from troubles for which it is recommended, and have never failed to relieve them," says J. C. Jenkins, of Glasgow Ky. This remedy is for sale by C. W. Milhous.

Resenting a Reflection.

The Soprano's Maid—My mistress had five bouquets thrown at her during the first act.

The Contralto's Maid (disdainfully)—Indeed! How nice! I'll bet she paid for them herself.

The Soprano's Maid—Of course she did. She doesn't have to have things charged like some people I know do.—Brooklyn Life.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Liniment and bound on the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains and is certain to please anyone suffering from that disease. Sold by C. W. Milhous.

Anxious Mother—I cannot permit you to have such late callers. It was after 11 o'clock when Mr. Huggins left last night.

Pretty Daughter—Why, mamma, I don't see how you can class Mr. Huggins as a late caller. It was only 7:30 when he came.—Chicago News.

Mr. F. G. Fritz, Oneonta, N. Y., writes: "My little girl was greatly benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative, and I think it is the best remedy for constipation and liver trouble." Foley's Orino Laxative is mild, pleasant and effective, and cures habitual constipation. Sold by all druggists.

One of the admirable traits of the people is their wonderful self control. They look in a mirror and see a sign of age here and another sign of age there, but it is not on record that they ever let their rage reach such bounds that they smash the looking glass.—Atchison Globe.

When You're Out of Sorts.

A good thing to try when you are out of "kilter" is to fast, drink lots of water during the fast, but remember when you are fasting to remove all reason for further fast. Having decided to fast, the faster should make up his mind to use discretion. He should not, because he has come to believe in the efficacy of fasting, determine upon a long fast for a beginning. He must not let his enthusiasm for the new treatment carry away with it his common sense. His first fast should cover two meals—breakfast and dinner.

She Was Pleasantly Surprised.

Miss H. E. Bell, Wausau, Wis., writes: "Before I commenced to take Foley's Kidney Pills I had severe pains in my back, could not sleep and I was greatly troubled with headache. The first few doses of Foley's Kidney Pills gave me relief, and two bottles cured me. The quick results surprised me, and I can honestly recommend them." Sold by all druggists.

Budget.

The origin of the word "budget," meaning an estimate of government revenues and expenses, is thus explained:

Almost from time immemorial it was the custom in England to put the estimates of receipts and expenditures presented to parliament in a leather bag, the word budget being thus borrowed from the old Norman word bougette, which signifies a leather purse. Curiously enough, the word has passed back again into France from England.

Both Boys Saved.

Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, Mich., writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough, and a neighbor's boy, who was so ill with a cold that the doctors gave him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by all druggists."

"Ah, yes!" sighed the lovelorn youth. "I'm passionately in love with Miss Van Fickel. I wonder if I will ever succeed in winning her affections?" "Why not?" replied his cousin Helen. "I know at least half a dozen other men who have."—Philadelphia Press.

Foley's Honey and Tar clears the air passages, stops the irritation of the throat, soothes the inflamed membranes, and the most obstinate cough disappears. Sore and inflamed lungs are healed and strengthened, and the cold is expelled from the system. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

PUBLIC business should always be done in the open. Public officers should talk to their constituents about public business.

DR. FIELDEN LETT is well qualified to perform the duties that devolve upon the city treasurer. He is honest and trustworthy and will make a good officer. He will fill the office of city treasurer to the satisfaction of all the people. Vote for Dr. Lett.

THE Merchants Association is giving attention to the lighting question and they have the interests of the city and the residents of the city uppermost in mind. Mayor Kyte has the authority to aid materially in the solution of this question and he should not hesitate. The business men should make some suggestions to him.

JOHN HAUENSCHILD is exceptionally well qualified for the office of city clerk. He is a fine penman and besides he is a successful young business man. He is a man of unquestioned integrity and is held in high esteem by a host of friends. He will make the city a first class clerk. Give him your support and vote.

WILLIAM R. DAY, the republican candidate for councilman in the fifth ward, has held a responsible position at the Woolen Mill for thirty years which demonstrates his faithfulness to duty. Everybody in the ward knows and respects him. He enjoys their confidence and they are pleased because they have the opportunity to vote for him as their representative in the city council.

THE republican candidates for councilmen-at-large, John A. Goodale and Sherman Day, are well known throughout the city. The former served several terms in the council some years ago and made a good record. Mr. Day has held a foremanship at the Woolen Mill a long time which shows his capability. These men are both well qualified for the duties imposed on councilmen and will represent the people faithfully and well.

Notice of Adoption of Resolution.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—Notice is hereby given, by the Common Council of the city of Seymour, Ind., that on the 11th day of October 1909, they unanimously adopted Declaratory Resolution No. — for the opening and widening of Second street of said city from the present terminus of east end of Second street east to Greeman avenue.

The Common council has fixed the 8th day of November 1909, as a date upon which remonstrance may be filed or presented by persons interested in or affected by, said proposed opening, as above described, and on said day, at 8 o'clock p. m. said council will meet at its office for the purpose of hearing and considering any remonstrances which may have been filed or presented, and for the purpose of taking final action thereon. Such action shall be final and conclusive upon all persons.

For Sore Throat, Sudden Cold and Coughs no remedy has been discovered so powerful to cure as Perry Davis' Painkiller. As a Liniment it has no equal in curing Rheumatism or Neuralgia, burns and bruises, and wounds of every description. It is the cheapest and best remedy offered to the public. Only 35c. for a big bottle. There are other sizes also, 25c. and 50c.

To Preserve Beauty.

Frenchwomen are known for the care they take of their beauty and the hardships they undergo to preserve it. The latest devices in the beautifying line are a rubber mask, which is tied at night over the chin and throat in order to prevent the appearance of wrinkles, and metal finger clasps, which are worn to diminish the size of the finger tips, causing a tapering of the finger and to give fine shape to the nails.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

A strong advancing movement in prices again characterized the New York stock market.

Former United States Senator William Lindsay, of Kentucky, is dead at his home in Frankfort, aged seventy-five.

In formal session the board of aldermen of New York city presented the freedom of the city to Dr. Frederick A. Cook.

Patrick H. McCarren's condition is reported as slightly improved, though his physician will not venture to prophesy as to the ultimate outcome.

The summer home of the family of President Taft at Beverly has been abandoned, Mrs. Taft and family having returned to the White House.

The Cubs won their fourth victory over the White Sox in the series for the championship of Chicago by 1 to 0, clinching the honors to the West Side club.

WOMAN MAKES HIT ON THE HUSTINGS

Mrs. Shank Helping Husband at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Lew Shank, wife of the Republican candidate for mayor, has entered the campaign for her husband, making her first speech at a ward meeting last night. She was received with great enthusiasm by the crowd around the speaker's stand and her utterances were applauded frequently.

She proved herself an entertaining speaker and an effort is making to get her to accept regular assignments, which will require three speeches a week until the campaign closes. Mr. Shank declares if he is elected and there is an inaugural ball it will not be confined to the bob-tails, but all the people will be invited.

OPENED THE ENVELOPE

Alleged Cigarette Bribery Money Given to Charity.

Indianapolis, Oct. 16.—With the approval of Judge Pritchard of criminal court, Prosecutor Hooton has made disposition of the $100 alleged bribe money, which it was claimed was given by O. A. Baker to State Representative Ananias Baker in 1905 to influence his vote on the anti-cigarette law.

Prosecutor Hooton announced that he would give the $100 to the Home for Aged and Friendless Women.

The envelope containing the money was opened by Prosecutor Hooton in the presence of Judge Pritchard. The money was in five $20 bills. Each of the bills was marked. With the money was a note which O. A. Baker was alleged to have sent to Ananias Baker. The note was thus made public for the first time. It reads as follows:

"Feb. 20, Friend Baker. I was sorry I missed you today. I was trying to get away from another party, and thought you would wait a little; then the next thing I knew you were gone. If convenient, come at 8 this evening. If not convenient, then come at 8:30 or 9. I will be watching for you. Sincerely yours, Baker."

"Have no fear, Baker. I never violate a confidence."

Ananias Baker, the prosecuting witness, died last spring and in July the indictment against O. A. Baker was nolleed. Neither O. A. Baker nor the relatives of Ananias Baker claimed the money.

FOR MUTUAL BENEFIT

Editors of the Village Papers of Indiana Get Together.

Indianapolis, Oct. 16.—The fall meeting of the Indiana Associated Weeklies, an association of newspaper men representing the papers in the smaller towns of the state, is in session here today.

The meeting, which is being held at the Grand hotel, is presided over by President H. F. Harris of the Pierce-ton Record, W. J. Heuring of the Winslow Dispatch, secretary. The forenoon session was given over to a discussion of a formal program bearing upon the promotion of the interests of the publishers, and this afternoon many of the editors and their wives devoted their time to sightseeing. The election of officers will take place at the annual spring meeting to be held here in April next.

Strong Point For Hearst.

New York, Oct. 16.—William R. Hearst and his supporters are now in undisputed possession of the Civic Alliance, the party they organized after Tammany grabbed the Independence League. The board of elections decided that the Hearst people were entitled to use the name and emblem of the Civic Alliance. The decision of the board is of the utmost importance to Mr. Hearst and his followers, because otherwise they would have had to select another party name and emblem to run under.

Politics in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the only New England states holding elections this fall, loom up unusually large for an off year.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach. A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Restful Combinations.

Treat yourself (for it will prove, indeed, a treat) to plain French linen window and door hangings if your room rejoices in a bouquet wall paper. Reverse the thing in favor of a printed English chintz for the hangings showing on its surface a crawling vine or even a peacock design should your wall be but a plain tint. The tinted wall is no longer rare in houses that have benefited by the art of the modern decorator, but it is seldom found in the less expensive rented house.

The figured wall is sometimes quite possible even from the decorator's viewpoint. A great part of the work of this genius among men is "making the best of things," and with plain hangings and polished floors or one tone rugs the worst of wall papers is not always odious.

"I didn't learn it, Uncle George. I didn't half learn it. That's why I lost so much money."—Chicago Tribune.

MARRIED.

HINKLE-EGBERT

Mr. John Egbert and Miss Hattie Hinkle, were married Wednesday evening at Tucumcari, Judge J. D. Catlip saying the words which united them for better or worse. The young couple returned Thursday morning on No. 2, when they received the congratulations of their friends.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. H. M. Sanders and has only been here a couple of months, but has made a host of friends among the Nara Visa people by her charming ways and lady-like manners.

Mr. Egbert is a member of the firm of Defoe & Egbert and has been here so long that he is considered an old timer. He has been associated in different business enterprises since coming here and we are glad to see him take this step and become a permanent citizen of our town.—Nara Visa, (N. M.) New Mexican.

The home of Miss Hinkle was in Seymour until recently and this announcement of her marriage comes as a surprise to most of her friends.

CHESTNUT-McCLINTOCK.

Charles Chestnut, of Bedford, and Miss Mary McClintock, of Leesville, were married Thursday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton McClintock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Brown in the presence of only the immediate relatives. The bride had been a resident of Indianapolis for two years where she had been engaged as a trained nurse at the Fletcher sanitarium. They went to Bedford Thursday evening following the ceremony where they went to housekeeping at once in their newly furnished home.

Fold Damp Clothes.

Some housekeepers when wash day comes prefer to take down the plain clothes when still a little damp, so as to do away with the necessity of sprinkling before ironing. The starched pieces of course need sprinkling and should be allowed to dry thoroughly.

One clever housewife finds it a great time saver if in taking down the plain clothes from the line they are folded then and there.

She says that if they are crowded into the basket carelessly there will be innumerable wrinkles that might have been avoided, and so the time spent in ironing will be materially increased.

Then, too, there is a saving of time in not having to handle the clothes a second time in the house to make them ready to iron.

The same housekeeper sees to it that the large pieces are put in the basket first, thereby saving time in sorting.

Albert Lett, Henry Horst and Zack Clevenger, of Crothersville, left for Illinois this morning to work during the corn husking season. They expect to return home about holiday time.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for our list of testimonials.

A Domestic Problem.

A young housekeeper whose finances permit the luxury of only one maid is undecided whether or not to take back her treasure of last winter. The treasure aforesaid is pretty, young, always looks attractive and gives good service, but her "privileges" have grown almost beyond the bounds of reason. She has by pleading and subterfuge acquired them one by one, and their sum and substance is as follows:

One extra night out each week for a dancing class, posting letters frequently, which takes two hours for a twenty minute round trip; girl callers every afternoon and triweekly kitchen receptions, for which cake odors float upward, although for the family all cake is bought. Her work is perfectly done, but the entertaining below stairs makes a gap in the storeroom, and the noise of even quiet company is apparent. It seems to be a case of comfort versus discipline, and if a happy medium can only be agreed upon the treasure will rule again.

Made in a Bottle.

A very easy way to prepare French salad dressing, especially where a large quantity of it is needed, is by shaking the ingredients together in a rather large, well corked bottle. Put in the oil and vinegar, four times as much of the oil as of the vinegar, and add salt and paprika. If mustard is used add it. Now shake the bottle until the contents are well mixed and form a sort of emulsion. It is most easily done by clapping each end of the bottle with the hands and shaking sideways rather than up and down.

WATCHES

THE GENTLEMAN FARMER.

I'd like to till the taters, I'd like to hoe the corn;
I'd like to rake the driveway, I'd like to mow the lawn.
I'd like to pick some beans for grub (I know we need a lot),
I'd like to feed the horses; but it's too darn hot.

I'd like to paint the fences, or clean the horses' stalls;
Or fix that leak upon the roof or kalsomine the walls.
I'd like to fix the stovepipe, and all that sort of rot;
I'd like to clean the hen coop; but it's too darn hot.

I'd like to—oh, confound the thing! These everlasting 'phones
Are nuisances this weather! Hello! Yes! That you, Jones?
What? Eighteen holes with you? Why, sure! I'd just as lief as not!
But say! You'd better start before it's too darn hot!

—New York Sun.

Bob of the Furnace stood six feet two in his stockings, and was well proportioned withal. There was nothing of the long and lanky about Bob. We in the office were wont to say that the King had lost a fine life-guardian when Bob became a furnace hand.

It was a treat to watch him at his work, his shrewd frame made him so completely master of his business, and often at teeming time when the metal was run into the molds did I find myself within the melting furnace. The whole scene comes up before me as I write, the long shed full of flickering light and shade, the grotesque shadows of the men flung upon the walls, the tongues of clear flame that leapt up from the underground fires, and the grim form of the half-naked giant, as (his rough figure haloed in ruddy light) he stood with legs astride over one of the uncovered holes. A straight-down thrust of the long tongs and the spluttering crucible was lifted out of its flame-lined grave. For one moment the man would balance it on the iron floor. Then with a deftness which none of his mates could imitate, the long tongs would be brought to the horizontal, and the molten steel would fall into the square mold with the color and lap of new milk poured into a churn.

There came a day when a greater fear of Bob fell upon his mates. No one knew rightly the ins and outs of the quarrel. There was a clamor of fierce voices by the furnace door, Bob's raucous tones high above the rest, followed by the sickening thud of a human head in deadly contact with the iron cistern. Then some one shouted for the ambulance, while Bob himself was escorted from the works with three stalwart policemen in close attendance. A merciful coroner's jury brought in a verdict of "accidental death," but Bob was never the same man afterwards. The snarl passed out of his voice, and a rough attempt at kindness took its place. Moreover, he went to the cistern to fling water upon the smouldering sacking (with which the furnacemen protected their legs from the heat he looked another way and—shuddered.

It was about a fortnight after the inquest that I came into personal touch with Bob. I had just looked up the safes and was about to depart when he should come into the counting house but the giant himself.

"Mr. Benedict," he said, and his voice was shaky, "I want yer to be so kind as to do summat for me." Then suddenly his voice trailed off into indistinctness, his huge frame shook like a leaf and before I could ask a question the man had flung his arms over the desk and was sobbing with the unfeigned grief of a little child.

"I want to ax yer," he said, as he became calmer, "to take five shillings to Mrs. Jenkins" (Jenkins was the name of the man who was killed in the quarrel), "and tell her I'll praps come every week till her lad's owd enew to keep 't' house going. She musn't know as it comes fro' me, or like enew she wait hey it." He put the money in my hands and was gone. The commission was duly fulfilled and one day I was able to bring Bob some consolation. "I hear," the widow had said to me on her last visit, "that Bob Jones is terribly cut up about the—job; but I bear him no ill will, for I know it were just a accident," and then she added, with the characteristic resignation of her class: "What's done mun be put up wi'." I told this to Bob, and though he said nothing, his face visibly cleared. That very evening he burst into the widow's cottage with the same abruptness with which he had come into the office.

"Mrs. Jenkins," he stammered, "I've come to ax yer pardon; I didn't go for to do it, I didn't hurt a worrum; it's my temper as gets 't' better o' me." A golden sovereign was found on the table when he was gone. In this way did Bob of the Furnace try to make amends, and Bob, ladies and gentlemen, had 35 shillings a week. It was quite by accident that I came to know anything of Bob's home life.

AN OLD ROMANCE.

Charles Villiers, long the "Father of the House of Commons," never married, but he was the hero of a romance, which is described in the "Reminiscences and Correspondence of Madame Olga Norikoff" as having lasted all his life.

Villiers was once on the eve of marrying a very rich spinster. The lady, however, was imprudent enough one day to say to her fiancé that she knew very well he only wanted to marry her money and not herself.

Villiers' aristocratic dignity manifested itself. He took his hat, bowed to the lady, and said that after that remark there could be no more question of marriage between them. Off he went.

Strangely enough, the deserted spinster spent the next thirty years in trying in vain to see him, to make up. He never came near her, or gave her a chance of coming near him. "And do you know," remarked Lady Gilbert, who told me the story, "she still loves him, and cherishes his memory."

"Oh, that is charming! Quite a romance!" I exclaimed. "Tell the lady to lunch with me to-morrow—we were acquainted. 'Charles Villiers is coming.'"

Lady Gilbert delivered my message. The two old people met at my hotel, after which the lady humbly asked Charles Villiers to call on her. He accepted the invitation. When we were alone together, she said, "Do you know, Madame Norikoff, he is not in the least altered after all these years. He is exactly the same in looks and manners."

Of that, of course, I could have no opinion. But surely thirty years ago the old Charles Villiers was neither half-bent nor half-blind. However, the old-time friendship was renewed, and lasted until the lady's death, a few years later.

She left him the greatest part of her very great fortune. Charles Villiers became very rich in money, but unfortunately he was then very rich in years also.

INSTANCES OF YANKEE LUCK.

Mineral-Bearing Territory Acquired That Arouses World's Envy.

Now comes the report from Luzon, Philippine archipelago, that discoveries of gold bearing ore have been made that promise great richness, the Washington Post says. Press dispatches state that some of the assays run as high as $20,000 to the ton. A year ago it was announced that great coal deposits underlie a good portion of some of those islands, and that in case the supply over here is exhausted, as is feared by the experts, the world may warm itself for a considerable term of years on the product of our far Eastern possession.

All of which calls to mind the remarkable luck of Uncle Sam in acquiring territory that produces mineral that is the envy of the entire world. Alaska, the despised, is sending out gold enough every year to pay for herself. Copper mines of untold wealth have been discovered there, and a railroad is being built inland from Seward to tap them.

Still back of this the United States acquired from Mexico the Gadsden purchase, a vast stretch of apparently worthless land. That strip of it across Arizona and New Mexico was long known as "the land that God forgot." Yet American prospectors went into it, and at first opened up gold and silver mines that paid prodigiously. Still later attention was turned to the copper deposits in that region, and such busy towns as Bisbee sprang up along the frontier, supported entirely by the copper mines.

Recently Arizona has taken her place as the greatest copper-producing commonwealth in the union, and that region lying about her southern border has come to be known as the greatest copper-producing belt in the world. Michigan and Montana have been relegated to second and third place, and the cactus-covered southwest has been given the palm.

Truly it seems that wherever the Yankee sticks his pick in the ground he turns up a fortune.

AN EVICTION IN BIRD-LAND.

The squirrel is pretty, thrifty and industrious—but he has his faults. He likes to use the nests which woodpeckers hollow out of the tree trunks, and he is not always willing to wait until the bird deserts her nest. A writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat describes the way in which an impudent squirrel actually turned a family of woodpeckers out of their home.

The squirrel, descending a tree trunk, suddenly found a hole, into which two of his legs slipped. Probably he felt something sharp pecking at them, for he drew them out quickly, and rapidly climbed to a branch immediately above. A moment later a woodpecker flew out of the hole.

The squirrel watched her out of sight, and then returned to the nest, and helped himself to an egg or two, which he carried up to his perch and ate.

When these were disposed of, he descended once more to the woodpecker's nest and waited for the return of the bird.

The moment she appeared at the entrance to her nest, the squirrel flew at her like an angry cat.

The startled woodpecker fled in fear, and the squirrel came forth triumphantly and went away for a short time.

While he was away the woodpecker came again, and looked into her nest. Something, however, probably a broken egg, displeased her, and she flew away again. Shortly afterward her mate looked into the nest, but he, too, was dissatisfied, and flew away.

Many times they returned to the nest, but always with the same result. At length they seemed to make up their minds that they could never make their home in that nest again, and they flew away to another part of the wood.

The squirrel promptly took possession of the deserted nest, and when autumn came he turned it into a storehouse for nuts.

DEADLY SNAKES IN CARGO.

Pythons and Cobras Brought to Boston from Calcutta.

Deadly cobras and pythons in heavy wooden boxes filled the bridge deck of the Hansa steamship Hohenfels, which came into port from India and Ceylon and went to the Mystic wharf, the Boston Globe says. The reptiles were taken on board at Calcutta, having been brought from the interior of India at great expense.

The cobras are the most deadly snake in India and a human being bitten by one of them would die within three minutes. There were eight cobras on board when the steamer sailed and also twenty-seven pythons. One cobra died and the body was thrown overboard. It had no sooner struck the water than it was swallowed by a monster shark.

The pythons measure about twenty-five feet in length, and while their bite is not deadly, they would crush a person to death in the folds of their long bodies.

Capt. H. Muller, the commander of the steamer, said the snakes had not been fed since they left India. Twice each week a bucket of water is thrown on them, and this is all that is required to keep them alive. The captain said that they go without food for six months at a stretch. The boxes are covered with a wire netting to prevent the snakes from escaping. The Lascar members of the crew have a wholesome respect for the reptiles and they refuse to go on the bridge deck on which the boxes are carried.

Sergeant Jones of Tennessee.

North through Luzon Lawton swept, And harried the Tagals fast and far, Until by night, if their pickets slept, They would rouse from dreams in a shake of fear, Thinking their tireless foe was near To smite by the light of the tropic star.

North through Luzon Lawton swept, (The bravest of all the brave was he!) And with his column that never crept Was one whose spirit to his was twinned; Danger? He laughed it down the wind! Sergeant Jones of Tennessee!

Fronting the Filipino line, One morn as the resting soldiers lay, Hearing the mausers whirl and whine, He saw the folds of a battle-flag In the sultry breezes rise and sag Beyond where a river wound its way.

What did the daring sergeant do? Tightening his trooper's belt by a hole, Slipped from the shelter of thick bamboo,

Swam the ooze of the sluggish stream, With its rows of bayonet-reeds agleam, And forward over the rice-fields stole.

Over the rice-fields stole, and then Leaped at the banner, and clutched it fast

In the very face of the riflemen; And, ere they rallied from palsied dread,

Back with the captured flag he sped With never a look behind him cast.

Around him, like invisible bees, The bullets buzzed in a deadly band From the rifles of his enemies;

They plowed the ground behind, before, But he reached the dip of the river shore

Unscathed, the banner within his hand, Oh, what a cheering, rank on rank,

Down the length of the line there ran, Greeted him as he climbed the bank! Swelled about him and surged—and we Fling it back to him over the sea, Valiant-hearted American!

Polishing a Diamond.

The polishing of a diamond is a very slow process, because of the great hardness of the material; besides this, the work must be frequently interrupted to allow the disk to cool out after it has become overheated by friction. Each time a new facet is to be cut the diamond must be removed from the dop and reset at another angle, and the diamond cutter trusts to his eye alone to guide him in this delicate adjustment, although in the case of very small diamonds a magnifying glass is necessary. The skill shown in placing the stone in the heated metal, sometimes with the bare hand, is surprising. The regular brilliant has 56 facets, besides the table and the collet; 32 above the girdle and 24 below; but as eight facets are first formed, both above and below, each of these being reset into three or four smaller ones there are considerably more than 56 separate surfaces to be cut.—From Dr. George Frederick Kunz's "The Two Largest Diamonds," in Century.

When we were a boy, the plebeian boys said, "Yes, mom," to a lady, and the aristocratic boys said, "Yes, mam."

HISTORY OF A TUSK.

Picture Made by Cave Man Millions of Years Ago.

Long ago, so long ago that even a scientist would hardly dare venture a guess as to the date, a man clad with only a wild beast's skin about his loins was sitting at the mouth of a cave in one of the rocky highlands in what is now Southern France, says a writer in Lippincott's. He was scratching with a sharp flint on the fragments of an ivory tusk, perhaps picturing some youthful admirer's adventures through which he had passed or animals he had slain. That ivory chip was stored away as a treasure, to be lost and forgotten after the cave man's death. One day a man named Lartet, digging in the cavern floor, found it. On it was scratched a very fair representation of the hairy elephant, probably at once the oldest picture and the oldest human record in existence.

We know the cave man was a faithful workman, for the melting ice fields of Siberia have yielded a perfect specimen of this extinct mammal, and the paleolithic picture is a true copy. Not only has this ancient sculptor given us a sample of the earliest art, but he has left us, more valuable than all, a historical record of his time, for this rude picture is simply a page from the cave man's history which, translated into twentieth century English, says, "Men, thinking men, were contemporaneous with the hairy elephant."

No record that any of humankind have ever left is half so ancient as this. The oldest Egyptian papyrus is a thing of yesterday compared to this paleolithic sculpture. While the cave man was living in Europe the valley of the Nile was yet only a wild waste. Egypt was not yet Egypt, and civilization as we know it had scarcely made a beginning.

ONE OF BISMARCK'S PRANKS

In his university days Bismarck was as jolly and boisterous as the least promising youth of his generation. According to the author of a recent book, "The M. P. for Russia," he enjoyed dancing and singing better than study, and was as full of fun as his chosen companion, Count Keyserling, was deficient in it; and on this difference in temperament hangs a tale.

One day the shy and reserved Keyserling came to Bismarck in great agitation.

"What is the matter?" demanded Bismarck.

"My mother writes that an aunt and two cousins are coming for a week to Berlin, and as they are very young and inexperienced, I must go about everywhere with them, offering them all sorts of amusements. It is most annoying," groaned Keyserling, "as I have to prepare myself for examinations and have no time for pretty country cousins!"

Bismarck saw his chance, and immediately inquired:

"Have you ever seen these young girls? Have they ever seen you?"

"Never in my life."

"Capital. Nothing could be better. Let me be Count Keyserling for the time being, and you become simple Bismarck. You stay at home, and I shall become a first class cicero during all the time of their visit."

Keyserling eagerly accepted the proposition. When the young ladies arrived, Bismarck met them as Keyserling, and placed himself at their disposition during their stay in Berlin. Keyserling buried himself in his books and thought no more about it until the girls had gone home to the Baltic provinces.

A week or two later he was disconcerted by receiving a letter from home, in which his mother expressed her great delight in hearing from the young ladies and their mother how immensely they had enjoyed themselves, and how very agreeable and kind their cousin had been.

"I am overjoyed," continued the fond parent, "to hear from their description that you have grown quite stout and robust during your stay at Berlin."

Humor of Henry James.

A characteristic letter of Henry James, the novelist, eight pages in length, dated Cambridge, Mass., April 13, 1879, and addressed to a reviewer of his book, "The Europeans," sold for $20.25 at Anderson's the other day. It was a high price, but then the letter is especially interesting. In it Mr. James says in part:

"It must be that I am losing in my old age the art I once excelled in, of keeping off readers. None of my books have had more than two or three readers, and these mostly women, who, poor things, you know, have never been able, from Eve down, to judge righteous judgment. But now, evidently from your proof, my horizon is widening."

A letter of John Hay, June 12, 1871, to a fellow newspaper man, asking him to get for him a Goethe autograph, brought $2.

An Unfounded Rumor.

"Mrs. Muchmore told me," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that the new minister came in 'his vestments when he officiated at your daughter's wedding.'"

"It ain't true," replied her hostess, as she flung one of her ropes of pearls over the back of a $90 rocking chair, "we brought him over in our limousine."

As we grow older, we have more sympathy for men who can't deliver the goods. We can't do it.

COVERED WITH HIVES.

Child a Mass of Dreadful Sores, Itching, Irritating Humor for Two Months—Little Sufferer in Terrible Plight—Cured by Cuticura.

"My six year old daughter had the dreadful disease called hives for two months. She became affected by playing with children who had it. By scratching she caused large sores which were irritating. Her body was a complete sore, but it was worse on her arms and back. We employed a physician who left medicine, but it did not help her and I tried several remedies, but without avail. Seeing the Cuticura Remedies advertised, I thought I would try them. I gave her a hot bath daily with Cuticura Soap and anointed her body with Cuticura Ointment. The first treatment relieved the itching and in a short time the disease disappeared. Mrs. G. L. Fridhoff, Warren, Mich., June 30 and July 13, '08." Potter, Drug & Chem. When Barnum arrived at the pearly gates he was welcomed by Forepaugh, who exclaimed exultingly, "Well, Pete, I got ahead of you this time!"

P. T. did not answer, but smiled as he pointed to a large bill posted near the main entrance. It read: "Wait for Barnum—Coming Soon."—Success Magazine.

GAINING STRENGTH

The Nicaraguan Rebellion Against Zelaya a Determined Movement.

Colon, Oct. 16.—By wireless from Bluefields.—During his journey toward the interior, General Estrada, the provisional president of Nicaragua, is recruiting successfully. Small towns in the vicinity of Rama have surrendered without ostentation. The rebellion is gaining strength daily among the people. Thousands are flocking to the standard of the insurgents. It is thought here that President Zelaya, against whom the rebellion is directed, and who is at Capt. Graclas a Dios, does not yet know of the revolt.

Steamers on Lake Nicaragua have landed insurgents under General Aurelio Estrada at towns on the shore of the lake, and the inhabitants have joined the rebels. Serious fighting is likely to take place at Managua, the capital, shortly. A number of Nicaraguan exiles under General Reyes are expected to arrive from Costa Rica today. Help is expected from Guatemala and Salvador.

BETTING IS ON AN EVEN MONEY BASIS

No Odds Being Offered On Today's Big Game.

Detroit, Oct. 16.—At Bennett's park this afternoon, before a crowd that taxes the capacity of the grounds, the last and deciding game of the world's series is being played. More than three thousand Pittsburghers reached Detroit today to yell for the Pirates. It has seemed the logical guess all along, and Manager Jennings announced today that the man on the mound would be either Donovan or Mullin. Both these men have demonstrated their ability to tame the Pirates by their deceptive curves. Jennings has shown much anxiety regarding his injured men, but found them all—Tom Jones, Moriarty and Schmidt, injured in Thursday's fierce battle—in playing form. It is not certain, however, that Jones will play. He is still somewhat dizzy from his collision with Wilson. If he is kept out Crawford will go to first and McIntyre to left field, with Davy Jones at center. This shake-up will not weaken the batting. It is argued that McIntyre is regarded as a sterling judge of curved ball pitching and Adams, who will pitch for the Pirates, uses virtually nothing else.

The Pittsburgh club held a meeting and Fred Clarke warmly criticized his men for several plays in Thursday's game. The supreme object of his fire was Abstein, who tried to score in the ninth on an infield tap with one out after Clarke had pointedly told him to take no chance. It is understood that Abstein is certain to be replaced before spring. His mates believe he has been to blame for the loss of at least one game and a chance to win another during the series. Immediately after Detroit's victory Thursday the money appeared on an even money basis. At the betting places only Detroit money is in evidence. One bet of $1,500 to $1,000 was made, a Detroit business man taking the long end on the Tigers.

FOUND DR. COOK'S RECORDS THERE

Tuff's Professor Reaches Top of Mt. McKinley.

A DEFINITE CORROBORATION

Dr. Carmalt of Yale Has Received a Letter From Prof. Fay, Former President of Alpine Club, Stating That He Had Climbed to the Top of Mt. McKinley, America's Highest Peak, and There Found the Data Left by Dr. Cook, Whose Feat Has but Recently Been Denied by the Guide Who Accompanied Him.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 16.—Dr. William H. Carmalt, professor of the principles and practice of surgery at Yale, it is stated here, has just received a personal letter from Prof. C. E. Fay of Tufts college, stating that he had climbed Mt. McKinley the past summer and that he had found on top of the mountain the records and data claimed to have been left there by Dr. Cook.

Dr. Carmalt has refused to give out the letter in which the Tufts professor told of finding Cook's records, on the ground that it was a personal letter. He refused to state that the letter was from Prof. Fay, but affirmed the report that he had received a letter from an authority on mountain climbing in which the writer had made the assertion that he had reached the top of Mt. McKinley and found there Cook's records. Dr. Carmalt further stated that he had brought the matter to the attention of the American Geographical Society. Prof. Fay is said to be a former president of the Alpine club and an officer of the Appalachian club. He has done considerable mountain climbing and, according to the opinion expressed by several Yale professors, if he states that he has ascended Mt. McKinley his word will be credited among scientists everywhere.

NOT DISTURBED

The Danes Continue to Repose Full Confidence in Dr. Cook.

Copenhagen, Oct. 16.—The reiteration of the story denying that Dr. Cook ascended Mt. McKinley, as cabled from the United States, has led to a bad impression among the people here, but it does not decrease the belief that Cook reached the north pole among explorers and scientists, who even ignore it or attribute it to Cook's enemies. They declare there is no reason for a change of mind, and they are awaiting without impatience the records Cook has promised to send to substantiate his claims.

JUDGE LINDSAY DEAD

Former United States Senator From the State of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 16.—Former United States Senator William Lindsay died at his home here. He had been ill several months.

Mr. Lindsay was formerly chief justice of the Kentucky court of appeals and had served as state senator and representative before going to the United States senate. After quitting political life he began the practice of law in New York and at the time of his death was a member of the firm of Lindsay, Kalish & Palmer in that city. He was seventy-two years old.

Mr. Lindsay was elected to the senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John G. Carlisle. He also served on the Interstate commerce commission and the World's Columbian commission.

DURING GOOD BEHAVIOR

Sentence Passed Upon Young Lawyer Will Be Suspended.

Franklin, Ind., Oct. 16.—Roscoe S. Parr, a member of the local bar association, called before the circuit court to answer to an indictment charging forgery, entered a plea of guilty. A fine of $100 and a sentence of from two to fourteen years was passed by the court. The sentence, however, was suspended during good behavior. Mr. Parr's trouble came out of the fact that for many months he had renewed heavy personal surety notes at the local banks. The indorsers on the original notes were the genuine signatures, but each succeeding renewal is alleged to have been a forgery.

Young Woman's Horrid Death.

Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 16.—Miss Bessie Strong, aged twenty, was burned nearly to a cinder after an explosion of roofing tar which scattered blazing tar over her clothing. She ran screaming toward the house, frantically endeavoring to beat out the flames, but within a few steps she was overcome and died in a few moments.

Mrs. Mason Acquitted.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 16.—Mrs. Leona Mason is not guilty of assault with intent to kill John W. Talbot. This verdict was reached by the jury of the circuit court after five minutes' deliberation.

THE VIVIANO CHILDREN

Had Been Deserted by Kidnappers on Streets of Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Tomaso and Grace Viviano, the two children kidnapped from their home in St. Louis last August and held for $25,000 ransom, have been found wandering, abandoned, on the streets of Chicago.

Picked up at first as strays from home, they were held by the police, awaiting inquiry from parents, for a day before their identity was established. Suffering from the exposure and with a well-developed attack of pneumonia, the little girl was taken to the Passavant hospital and placed in the care of physicians. The parents of the kidnapped children, Peter and Justina Viviano, have been notified, and they are expected to arrive here today.

The police believe the kidnappers had the children secreted in a secluded section of the city and turned them loose when efforts to extort ransom had failed.

THE KAISER DEEPLY INTERESTED IN IT

Wright Flying Machine Draws Out Germany's Ruler.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—At the Bornstedter field near Potsdam Orville Wright flew with his biplane in the presence of the kaiser, kaiserine and Princess Victoria Louise. A few members of the kaiser's personal suite were also present. At the close of the flight, which lasted, according to Wright's estimate, for twenty-five minutes, during which he reached a height of something over 100 meters, in the strongest wind he has yet flown in Germany, namely, 10 to 15 meters a second. The kaiser conversed with the aviator for three-quarters of an hour. His majesty paid a high compliment to Wright by going to see him an hour or so after his arrival at Potsdam after an absence of over six weeks, when he must have found piles of state papers calling for his urgent consideration.

OPEN AIR COMMUNION

Big Baseball Park to Be Utilized by Disciples of Christ.

Pittsburg, Oct. 16.—What will probably prove to be the most impressive communion service ever celebrated will be held here tomorrow, when between 50,000 and 60,000 Disciples of Christ will partake of bread and wine at the great outdoor meeting that will be held at Forbes field. Fifty thousand visitors to the centennial convention are in Pittsburg, and with more constantly arriving, and state churches planning to send delegations for the Sunday service, an enormous gathering of the followers of John Campbell is assured.

The veterans' campfire, the climax of the convention, was held yesterday afternoon. Much interest was taken in the address of Rev. L. L. Carpenter, seventy-seven years old, of Wash, Ind., who during his service has dedicated over 1,500 houses of worship and has raised over $2,000,000 for the erection of edifices.

NO MATCH FOR HER

Vassar Girl Puts It All Over a New York Pickpocket.

New York, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Alice Whitney, the young and pretty wife of Richard Whitney, an officer of the Adams Express company, captured a pickpocket in a Sixth avenue department store, pummelled his face, blackened both his eyes and held him until the store detective, Daniel Cash, placed him under arrest. The pickpocket proved to be George Harris, alias George Goodwin, with a prison record.

Mrs. Whitney is a graduate of Vassar and played on the Vassar basket ball team. The man fought back, but he was no match for the young matron.

HELD TO ANSWER

Fall River Police Arraign Suspects in Tiverton Murder Case.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 16.—Wilfred Thibault and "Doctor" Frank Hill, both of Fall River, were arraigned in the Seventh district court in that city on a charge of murdering Amelia St. Jean, the missing Woonsocket girl, who has practically been identified as the victim of the Tiverton mystery. Both pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued ten days for hearing. Though identification of the victim is regarded as practically certain, yet it is far from as satisfactory as the investigators would wish.

Storm's Dread Havoc.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 16.—The list of known dead, already reaching a total of thirty-eight and property damage running to $1,000,000 or more, indicate the havoc and destruction of the storm which swept the middle south Thursday.

Indiana's Biggest Pearl.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 16.—James Gray, a fisherman of Worthington, has sold for $3,000 a pearl which he found in a White river mussel. The pearl weighed 34½ grains and was the finest, as far as is known, ever found in this state.

OTHER DAYS, OTHER WAYS.

Modern Conveniences That the Average Maid Will Not Use.

The modern housewife may have in some instances an equipment that few "Biddies" can or will manipulate, says a writer in Harper's Weekly.

"No, mum, if ye please; O'll do the washin' in the old way. Oi don't loike thim newfangled things," old Ann remarked to her mistress when she returned after many years' absence and found a steam washing machine installed. "Oi was doin' washin's whin ye was in short dresses, Miss Mary. O'd ruther rub thim on the board than wash the old thing," she concluded, with a glance of grim displeasure at the despoiled labor saver.

The "Miss Mary" of twenty years' standing as a matron said to a neighbor who did her own work: "Ann simply won't use the washer. Wouldn't you like to have it?"

The neighbor accepted the offer, but in a week returned the machine. "I was never so disappointed," she explained. "I waited two hours for those streams of boiling suds to appear and pour through the clothes; then I washed the clothes on the board and was two hours late."

Inquiry revealed the fact that she had not used the cover of the machine and had actually expected to do her washing with the steam she had allowed to escape into the room.

"Well, you won't persuade me to try it again," she said testily. She is still using the washboard. So is Ann.

There are, of course, women who cannot or will not apply a scientific principle nor understand a mechanical device, however simple. There are others, men and women, too, who grudge the lightening of any burden borne by another.

Obstinacy is frequently a bar more impassable for improvements than either ignorance or stupidity. The "old ways" and the "old ways" interpose a sentimental or narrow minded obstacle to progress of every sort. Who denies the charm of the pastry baked in an old fashioned brick oven? Who wouldn't prefer a sand scrubbed white maple floor to the new white tile, cold and without sentiment—until one remembers the aching back of the one who must scrub? There is something substantially cheering about a heavy, shining coal range and its gleam of glowing coal, but think of the work of tending it, of keeping it and its surroundings clean. Watch the face of the woman who uses it for broiling or frying, then vote for the gas or electric range that does its work far more perfectly and leaves the worker cool and fresh.

Value of Albumen.

Albumen is by all odds the most important of the ingredients of our food. It is that part of the food upon which nutrition mainly depends. Take away the albumen and the gluten, which is probably the same substance in another form, and starvation must speedily follow, no matter how liberally we may partake of starch, sugar and fat.

MRS. BRASS — SHE GOT THE PICTURE---OH, YES!

~ PINKIE PRIM ~

1. Pinkie had just picked up the paper at the gate, when she heard Uncle Ned call, "Say dare, Miss Pinkie, won't you save dat 'Funny Part' for Uncle Ned?"

2. Pinkie paused, as Uncle Ned came up and politely lifted his old, tattered hat from his head. "Of course I will, after we are through with it," answered Pinkie.

3. "You sees, began Uncle Ned, 'Ah can't neither read nor write but when I sees dem funny pictures, I can see de pint, easy, an' ah jus' lafs an' lafs.'"

4. "I'm glad that you enjoy the 'Funny Paper' so much, and after this I'll always save them for you Uncle Ned," said Pinkie, as she turned to go.

5. — But later, Pinkie thought of a better plan. She went to her bank and when the paper man came next time she gave him money to carry Uncle Ned a paper with a "Funny Side" each week. Wasn't Uncle Ned happy, children?

CTICAL LESSONS IN DRAWING No. 8

Figure (1) shows method of blocking out the general form and different proportions of the deer. should be taken to get the proportions exact in pencil before inking. You will see how easy it is to correct by following the diagram of dots which show the proportions of the head in relation to the parts of the body. Measure the height of the body by the width of the head, the length of the body by the length of the head or width. The stars show how to get the depth of the body correct in relation to the legs, etc. When you have the proportions of the general outline of the body correct, then by the method of measurements put the eyes, nose, mouth and ears in their proper places. See how many high the head is. Measure the distance from the corner of the eye to the tip of the ear. Measure the width of the mouth in relation to different points. When you have finished all the measurements, round the corners of the blocked outline and put in the outlines of the muscles and masses of color. When the drawing is as true as you think you can get it should you ink in the detail. Mistakes will be noticeable by holding the drawing before a looking glass. Make the drawing of the deer about 12 inches high.

ANNA BELLE AND HER SISTER MARY No. 2

More of Anna Belle's Sister Mary's wardrobe is now shown. Numbers (1) and (2) are her "party" dress and hat. Numbers (3), (4) and (5) is her shopping costume. Number (6) is her kimono or house dress. To dress Anna Belle's Sister Mary in her different costumes, cut out all of them up to the black outlines. Then bend over the straps at the shoulders and the dress will stay on. Repeat this with her different costumes. Anna Belle would be glad to get letters from little boys and girls, with suggestions for NEW AND DIFFERENT dresses. She wants every little boy and girl to look forward to her visit each week. Address all letters to the Anna Belle Editor, this paper.
